IMPORTANT CORRESPONDENCE.

RIGHTS OF SETTLERS UNDER THE HOMESTEAD AND PRE EMPTION ACTS—OPINION BY THE SECRETARY OF THE INTERIOR.

The following correspondence will be found to contain matters of great importance to settlers on public lands It is placed in our hands by Senator Corbett for publication

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR, WASHINGTON June 22, 1871

SIR I have the honor to inclose herewith a letter addressed by the Department yesterday to B W Wilson of Corvallis Oregon, in reply to him letters in relation to the Homestead law which were transmitted by you to the Department on the 8th March last, and also copies of letter of Mr Secretary Harlan with which you subsequently asked to be furnished As Mr Wilson's communications came to the Department through your hands I have deemed it proper to transmit my reply to him through you Very respectfully,

Your obedient servant C DELANO, Secretary

Hon H W CORBETT U S Senator

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR, WASHINGTON D C 20th June, 1871

SIR I have considered your two letters in relation to the homestead law one of the 20th January last addressed to the Department and transmitted through Senator Corbett, the other of 18th February last addressed to him and referred by him to the Department They appear to raise three questions which are in substance as follows

1st Has a party the right under the homestead law to go upon a tract of surveyed land embraced in a pre existing entry under that law by another party if not followed up by the latter with the legally required settlement and cultivation, and does the settler thereby acquire a right to the land from the date of his settlement, and should he upon making proof of abandonment and cancelling the pre existing entry be on that ground allowed to enter the land as a homestead, to the exclusion of any other applicant therefor or of any grant by act of Congress for any work of internal improvement or other object, if subsequent to the date of his settlement?

As to this I am of opinion that land once entered as a homestead under the act of 1862, is not open to settlement until the entry has been cancelled upon proof of actual change of residence or abandonment for six months at any one time When the entry has been thus cancelled the land reverts to the Government and again becomes liable to either pre-emption or homestead entry The act of 1862 gives to a qualified person the right to enter unappropriated government land upon which he has filed a pre-emption claim, or any land at the time of his application subject to pre emption, at one dollar and twenty five cents per acre This land so entered is not to be patented until five years after entry, and then upon proof of settlement and cultivation for five years immediately following the date of the oath filed upon making the entry The settler does not lose his right to the land unless he actually changes his residence or abandons the land planned for six months at any one time, in either of which events upon proper proof to the Register, "the land so entered shall revert to the government" The intention of Congress as expressed in this act was to dispose of the unappropriated surveyed lands of the Government to such persons as would cultivate, improve and make them their homes and to this end it allows them to enter the land and gives them a title in fee complete, of course, but one of which they cannot be divested except in the manner pointed out in the statute I do not think that a settlement made after homestead entry and before the same has been cancelled, is of any value to the settler, because his settlement is upon lands recognized by the government as the land of another Until after the expiration of the time in which the settlement and cultivation can be proved, the government will presume the homestead claimant is acting in good faith, unless the contrary is shown in the way pointed out by the statute This view of the law seems to have been entertained by Mr Secretary Harlan in his ruling of the 22d June, 1866

2d Has the settler on unsurveyed lands the right to enter the tract covered by his settlement as soon as surveyed, to the exclusion of advance claims, under the provisions of the homestead law?

I am of opinion that unsurveyed lands, as such are not subject to homestead entry The act of 1862 in terms limits homestead entries to surveyed lands and after the same shall have been surveyed, is the language of the statute But when a pre emption settlement has been made on unsurveyed lands followed after survey by the filing of a declaratory statement, the settler is at liberty to commute to a homestead entry I am aware that Mr Secretary Harlan limited such commutation to pre-emption settlements on surveyed lands, but the limitation seems to me not to be countenanced by the homestead act which gives a qualified person the privilege of entering any unappropriated public land upon which he may have filed a pre-emption claim The pre emption laws allow him to settle upon unsurveyed lands, and when they are surveyed and his declaratory statement is filed, his right attaches from the date of his settlement

3d Is the claim of Mr Bowman prejudiced by the grant of certain public lands to the Corvallis and Yaquina Military Road Company

As this is a case which may possibly come before me on appeal I do not feel at liberty to express an opinion as to its merits upon an ex parte statement of the facts

I am Sir, Very respectfully Your obedient servant C DELANO Secretary

B W WILSON Corvallis O

Following are the letters alluded to by Secretary Harlan alluded to above.

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR, Washington D C, Jan 10, 1870

SIR I have received your letter of the 21st ultimo enclosing a letter from the Register and Receiver at Omaha N T, the object of certain parties who have filed pre emption claims up a tract in their district which they subsequently entered under the Homestead Act and a paper setting forth the names of such parties the date of their settlement and a description of the tracts

It appears that the date of their pre emption declarations extend through six months interfering with the passage to the taking effect of the Act

Your office decided that the filing of a declaratory statement subsequent to the passage of the Act debars the claimant from entering under its provisions the tract described in the statement as the second proviso to the sixth section clearly limits such rights to cases where such statements were filed prior to that date since then and prior to the 1st of January, 1863 hundreds have sought to avail themselves of those privileges and you therefore recommend that their entries be allowed In regard to all filings under the pre emption law made since the 1st of January 1863 you suggest that the parties be held to their engagements, and that the restriction in the sixth section of the Homestead Law be here after enforced in all cases

A proviso in the sixth section is interpreted by you as restrictive of the right of entry granted in the first section I do not so consider it, as you will have perceived by my letter to you of the 21st instant To avoid any misapprehension, I think it necessary to allude to a feature of the law, the expiration of which was not required in the determination of the case to which that letter refers

The privilege of a Homestead entry by the first section of the Act does not extend to unsurveyed lands The party by its provisions is entitled to enter a limited quantity of the public land in conformity with the legal subdivisions thereof, and after the same shall have been surveyed A sound construction would not permit a party to settle upon unsurveyed public lands file a pre emption claim therefor, and upon the subsequent survey of them abandon his pre emption right and enter the tract under the Homestead Act

A pre-emptor is peculiarly favored by our legislation He is permitted to settle upon lands before they are brought into market or even surveyed and thus acquire an indefeasible right to a particular tract which he may consummate by patent whilst all parties not in good faith seeking to avail themselves of the pre-emption laws can obtain no right to unsurveyed, nor even to unoffered lands The priority of his settlement upon a particular tract excludes all others therefrom, and his continuance upon it until the survey, and then claiming it under the Homestead law are supposed a right which Congress has not conferred and the exercise of which would lead to great abuse Where, however a party in view of his right of pre emption has made a settlement upon surveyed public lands and declared intention of availing himself of that right, he is not prohibited from entering it under the Homestead Act

You will therefore direct the local officers where a party seeks to abandon his pre-emption claim with a view to an entry under the Homestead Act to ascertain whether his settlement commenced prior to the survey of the lands, and if it did, to disallow such entry, and require him to perform his engagement under the pre emption laws, or incur the consequences of his failure

The papers are now returned and it is almost superfluous for me to add that the entries to which you refer should be allowed, as the settlement in question commenced subsequently to the public surveys Very respectfully, your obedient servant

(Signed) JAS HARLAN Secretary

Hon J M EDMUNDS, Com Gen Land Office

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR, WASHINGTON, D C, June 22, 1866

SIR The Commissioner of the General Land Office—Sir I have received your letter inclosing instructions which you propose to issue to the Register and Receiver at Dakota City, Nebraska in regard to pre emption and homestead settlers upon odd sections within the limits of the grant for the Burlington and Missouri river road, and also enclosing a letter from Henry Board, Esq, bearing on the same subject

The homestead settler's right attaches only from the date of entry, the pre-emptor's from the date of his actual personal settlement The title in either case is consummated by a full compliance with the terms and conditions imposed by law The grant to said company does not embrace lands to which a valid right arising either under the homestead or pre emption law had previously attached, but if such right be abandoned or forfeited, the grant would immediately thereafter take effect. A pre-emptor cannot abandon his claim as such, or transmute it to a homestead entry, so as to defeat the right of the Company which enured before such entry be made

If a pre-emption settlement has been commenced upon surveyed land, the latter might be entered as a homestead before the right of the Company attached, but not at a subsequent date

With these modifications of your instructions they are approved, and, with Mr Board's letter, returned herewith I am, very respectfully,

Your obedient servant JAS HARLAN Secretary

The Salem Woolen Mills are about ready to start up again

Work has commenced on the new Cumberland Presbyterian Church at Salem The building is to be 33 by 53 feet in size, and will cost $3,500

The total receipts at the North German Consulate at New York for the German relief fund are $351,712 62

This is the day of big excursions One has been planned from Memphis to extend five thousand miles, reaching St Paul on the north, Boston at the east, and including Niagara Falls, the White Mountains and Long Branch the cost of a ticket for the round trip being but $25

The Philadelphia Item has this alarming Washington dispatch

Washington is a dreadful place The most immoral city in the land Keep your sons and daughters from it Ruin awaits them here

Cincinnati is getting ready for her grand industrial exposition in September next All the indications so far are promising Enough is already apparent to indicate a success decidedly beyond that of last year, when four and a half acres of space was used, and over three hundred thousand people visited the exhibition

The Boston Traveller has a notion that suicide, like other crimes runs in strata One time it is a strata of poison, again of hanging, again of drowning, throat cutting or what not Now it has reached the coal oil formation Several instances are given in which this inflammable stuff afforded the means for self destruction

The Nebraska Constitutional Convention has adopted resolutions favoring the striking out of the word "male" from the constitution providing that no laws shall be passed abridging the privilege of citizens to enjoy themselves as they please on Sunday or in any way interfering with the customs of foreign born citizens upon that day asking that a clause be inserted prohibiting counties voting aid to railways Resolutions have also been offered that a committee submit a report upon the constitutionality of abolishing the grand jury system Also to report a clause conferring on females the right to vote at all elections

It appears that the jury in the case of McGehan, the man whom Mr Vallandigham was defending when he lost his life disagreed The Cincinnati Gazette charges that the verdict was the result of partisan influence as evidenced by the fact that of the seven Democrats on the jury none were for a verdict of murder McGehan's qualities as an assassin and bully were, it is stated highly useful to the Democratic managers and to the Whisky Ring while to both the dead man Myers was specially obnoxious The surviving counsel of McGehan worked on the susceptibilities of the jurors by the appeal that Vallandigham had sacrificed himself for his client It is alleged, however, that the manner of the senior counsel's death showed the fallacy of the argument He wished to establish in the case of McGehan since, in the nearest approach he could show to any possible position, Vallandigham's pistol shot downward, whereas Myers was shot nearly across the body"

PARIS July 7—The official journal announces that only forty five per cent of the amount subscribed is allotted to subscribers

The Augusburg Gazette says the Prussian military

The Daily Oregonian.

SATURDAY MORNING, JULY 8, 1871.

An Original Defense.

We take the following from the Herald:

Here is a question or two for the editor of the OREGONIAN: Do you, sir, as a public journalist of the State of Oregon, propose to continue to attack the Superintendent of the Penitentiary with having been guilty of murderous purposes, after it has been incontestably proven before the Courts that he made no assault with a deadly weapon until such an assault with such weapon had first been made upon him?

This is the first sentence of an article in the Herald, written in feeble imitation of some questions addressed by us to Gov. Grover in regard to the ruffian whom he keeps in the most responsible position under the State Government. It is the Herald's habit to chatter like a jackdaw in trying to imitate and repeat the words of another; therefore it has attempted a travesty of our inquiries to Gov. Grover, and thinks such parrotry an amazing intellectual feat. But we pass this by, and come to the pith of the subject in hand.

It is asserted that Watkinds made no attack on Clarke with a deadly weapon until the latter had first made such an assault on him; therefore Watkinds acted purely in self-defense and was entirely excusable. This is a disingenuous statement; it puts a false coloring on the whole affair, and the Herald should be ashamed of so pitiful a plea. Watkinds, by his own confession, attacked Clarke. He prepared himself with a cowhide and revolver, ostensibly for the purpose of using either or both, if he should deem it necessary, and did use both. When he began with the cowhide Clarke opened his pocket knife to defend himself. This he had a moral and lawful right to do, and had he laid the ruffian dead on the spot the law would have held him guiltless and the general verdict would have been that the assailant was rightly served. When Clarke struck at Watkinds with his knife, the latter began firing at him with his revolver. And now the Herald pretends that Watkinds was excusable because Clarke used a dangerous weapon first, and therefore Watkinds acted in self-defense! Pray, by what rule or criminal law is this doctrine taught? Of course, by the Herald's argument, Watkinds would have been perfectly justified, under the circumstances, in killing Clarke. Indeed, when have had this state of facts, any one man may assault another, and if the latter defends himself the former may shoot or even kill him, plead self-defense, and fear! This is the position of the Herald in this case. The public will judge whether the ruffian who, as Superintendent of the Penitentiary, is kept in charge of better men than himself, will be advantaged much by its defense.

An Indignant Protest.

The Oregon City Enterprise has a correspondent at Grande Ronde county whose views in respect to the "new departure" it warmly commends. This writer expatiates at great length on the new movement attempted by his party, and declares that if it is adopted by the Democratic National Convention it "will re-elect Grant in 1872." He thus gives vent to his indignation:

It has been the fortune of our party managers on several occasions past, to make platforms and to nominate candidates for the Republican party. Our conventions seem anxious to secure the services of "new" men, Generals of the army and navy serving spoil hunters to search Republican ranks, but in their anxiety to catch [illegible] they forget that something should be [illegible] Democratic aid. * * * The idea of [illegible] some "loyal general" in our ranks who was not determined to crush slavery [illegible] and then turn his bayonets and cannon against the democracy in the North, is quite new. Will the rules of those who were marked for the future victims? Sherman—who did more to injure our institutions than did Gen. Lee, and who did more against civilization than Attila, would be a nice specimen to put at the head of an Ohio platform—Grant would do as well and his confessions were just as fair as those of the [illegible] sinners.

The [illegible] party writer takes leave to doubt whether the Ohio reformers understand Democratism better than the Radicals themselves, and he says, apparently for the benefit of the Herald. "Tell us that the three Negro amendments to our constitution, engrafted thereon only by force and fraud, do not change our fundamental law if you will; but who will believe you?" We quote a portion of another paragraph:

If we are absolute on our position, "accept the situation" and acknowledge that we have been wrong for [illegible] years, then of course we must at once and out disgrace the great record of Democracy, with the [illegible] phraseology of these degenerate days, and our [illegible] to the Grecian names; such [illegible] as Revels, John Brown and Fred. Douglass.

The Enterprise entreats Democrats to read this letter and reflect upon it. It tells the world that it has wrongly interpreted the Ohio platform, and that the "new departure" will admit of no such construction as that paper has placed upon it. It is maintained by the Enterprise that the Ohio and California platforms are departures from the true faith, and that paper intimates that the [illegible] attempts to prove the contrary are [illegible] and sophistical. The correspondent also views the Enterprise so warmly commends, asserts that such a platform in Oregon will give the Republicans the State next year. We may add that we shall take the field next year in any event, no matter what course the opposition may pursue.

The Water Question.

The San Francisco Bulletin has the following:

Mayor Wasserman, of Portland, Oregon, is evidently alive to the best interests of the city when he recommends that the water supply should be made a municipal matter. Should the city council carry out the recommendation Portland would set an example which San Francisco would do well to follow. The Bulletin has repeatedly called attention to the subject, and we shall watch with interest the action of the Portland Town Council, on this recommendation made in Mayor Wasserman's first message.

Now let us see the Council take action. An organization of the new Council has been effected and preliminary matters disposed of. We shall now look for real work. The Mayor's message was full of good suggestions, which should be acted upon.

Becoming Famous.

An Eastern literary paper says that Miller, the Oregon poet, is making a sensation in London with his "Songs of the Sierras." It is reported, says this authority, to be the "latest pet of the best critical and poetical authorship of the town, the associate of the Rossettis, of Morris, of Jean Ingelow and others. The Athenæum, the Pall Mall Gazette, the Times, and the Globe have given him laudatory criticism, and Froude, the historian, Swinburne and Rossetti are to do that office for him in some other leading reviews." The London Athenæum, in making an announcement of a new series of popular poetry, names several American authors of fame who will be represented in the collection, among them "Joaquin Miller, the last, not least, of American poets." Our Oregon poet is becoming famous.

LAST NIGHT'S DISPATCHES.

[SPECIAL DISPATCHES TO THE OREGONIAN.]

WASHINGTON CITY.

WASHINGTON, July 7.—On special inquiry at the Department of Agriculture to-day, it is officially ascertained that there has been no analysis of cotton and other reports for July, not more than three-fourths of them having been received, and none from Texas and other distant States. Assurance is given that no specific points on the subject have been furnished by the Department to any parties whomsoever.

The President is expected to reach Washington Monday evening next, and return to Longbranch Tuesday night. He will soon thereafter visit Ohio and other parts of the West, and on the 15th of August proceed to California, Dr Norris, of the army, with others, accompanying him.

CALIFORNIA.

From San Francisco.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 7.—George Ruddock sues W. H. Gleason for $10,000 damages, being struck by him on the head with a pistol and permanently injured.

The matter of killing Iron-clad Jimmy, by policeman Waldron last night, will be investigated immediately. The Police Commissioners to-day concluding that in justice to all parties concerned the matter should have a public investigation, ordered Waldron to be suspended until the matter had been examined, and directed him to surrender himself, which he did. A charge of manslaughter was then made against him, he went before Judge Stanley, waived an examination in order to bring the case at once before the grand jury, and was admitted to bail. Public opinion generally exculpates him, and the killing is looked upon as a good riddance for society. It now appears that the shot which killed him was accidental, the pistol being discharged as Waldron was climbing the fence with it in his hand, while Wilkinson, alias Jimmy, was climbing another fence in front of him.

At the Oakland course to-day Scales' horse Black Swan won the race, three in five, in three straight heats. "Let Me Be," Joe Warren and Hector started in a race; "Let Me Be" having been the favorite from the start, and sold high in the pools, but it was seen as the race commenced that he had been purposely run around the track to tire him out and throw off the race. The Judges thereupon declared the race, pools and bets all off.

The regular ticket, with Von Schmidt for President, was elected by the California Pioneers this evening.

P. H. Canavan is reported so far recovered from his attack of last night as to be nearly out of danger.

The Democratic State Committee balloted to-day for nominee for State Harbor Commissioner, which Friedlander declined. No choice.

The Murder at Pioche.

HAMILTON, July 7.—Additional particulars of the killing of Monahan at Pioche City have been received. A row was in progress in front of Monahan's saloon, when Monahan, going to the door, received two bullets in the breast, and one in the stomach. A man named Fox and another, name unknown, are under arrest, charged with the shooting.

Eberhardt & Co. shipped to New York to-day, 27 bars of bullion, valued at $29,224.

Jasper McRedding was arrested to-day for stealing a $250 check.

Route of the California Pacific Railroad.

CARSON, July 7.—The Carson Register this morning has the following: While in San Francisco last week we heard it rumored that the California Pacific Railroad Company had under consideration a project for crossing the Sierra Nevadas by the Placerville or Big Tree route, touching Carson valley, and passing thence east through the central portion of Nevada to Utah, forming a junction with the projected Chicago and North western Pacific railroad at some point near Ogden.

From this point to Genoa, crops in Carson valley are a little under average. Those of the upper valley are looking well. Even in the latter locality the yield will not be as great as previous years.

From Southern California.

LOS ANGELES, July 7.—196 bars of bullion were received yesterday from Cerro Gordo.

It is rumored that the mail contract between San Francisco and San Pedro is awarded to Ben. Hartshorn and Harris Morton, and a new line of steamers will be put on immediately.

Boiler Explosion—Two Men Killed.

FOREST HILL, July 7.—A terrible accident occurred here this morning. The boiler of Rice & Rees' sawmill exploded, killing the engineer, Chas. Phillabrown, and A. Rice instantly. Several others were wounded slightly.

Homicide near Colusa.

COLUSA, July 7.—S. V. Greene shot and killed Van McDaniels, 50 miles from here yesterday. John and Van McDaniels had some trouble with Green about some rival dances, given on the 4th by Green and McDaniels. John and Van McDaniels came to Green's house yesterday morning, and after bandying words, Van McDaniels fired three shots with a revolver at Green, the first grazing and burning his shirt bosom. Green wrested the revolver from McDaniels and shot him twice through the head, killing him instantly. Green gave himself up, had an examination and was discharged on the ground of justifiable homicide.

PACHECO, July 7.—Wm. Steel, who shot a Spaniard last Saturday, Moraga Valley, was held to bail by Justice Ashbrook, to answer on charge of murder. Bail refused.

YREKA, July 7.—A mass meeting of citizens was held last night and a committee appointed to solicit subscriptions in aid of the sufferers by the late conflagration. The ruins are yet smouldering, although the engines have been throwing water on them constantly since Wednesday morning. All dangerous and heavy walls have been pulled down.

SANTA CRUZ, July 7.—J. D. Ordish, Secretary of the Pajaro lottery humbug, was arrested to-day and brought to Santa Cruz on an indictment found against him by the grand jury for carrying on a lottery.

BY STATE TELEGRAPH.

Grading on Railroad Commenced in Umpqua Valley.

OAKLAND, Oregon, July 7.—The O. & C. R. R. Co. have a large force of men grading between this place and Eugene City. Engineers commenced yesterday locating the road on Smith's Hill and in Yoncalla valley. This route will give Oakland a railroad in running order 180 miles south from Portland by January 1st, or earlier. Stages of the Oregon and California lines are making good time from railroad to railroad.

The New York World says that "two platforms have been proposed for the Democratic party in the contest of 1872." A party of established principles, certainly.

The insane of Washington Territory are twenty-eight in number, and are about to be removed from Monticello to the barracks at old Fort Steilacoom.

This Wonderful Vegetable restorative is prepared from pure St. Croix Rum and Calisaya Bark, known the world over as possessing wonderful tonic properties. As a Tonic and Cordial for the aged and languid it has no equal

PLANTATION BITTERS

Just the thing for the morning lassitude and depression of spirits caused by late hours and what is called fashionable dissipation.

PLANTATION BITTERS

Of all the appetizers it is the most infallible, and the impulse which it imparts to the digestive functions soon puts Dyspepsia to flight.

PLANTATION BITTERS

It is the for[illegible] remedy of the age. The specific of every species of debility, general or local, constitutional or casual

PLANTATION BITTERS

A wine glassful taken half an hour before breakfast, dinner or supper, quickens the flow of the gastric juice, and thereby provokes hunger.

PLANTATION BITTERS

"By its use I dispose of three good square meals per day, with a good relish, have no pains and have gained sixteen pounds in eight weeks; sleep well, and consider myself a healthy man."

PLANTATION BITTERS

Taken moderately, three times a day, will give you strength, health and a cheerful and contented disposition.

PLANTATION BITTERS

Will give rest and quiet to those who cannot sleep, from unsatisfactory condition of their affairs.

PLANTATION BITTERS

Will restore tone and vigor—just the thing for mothers nursing

PLANTATION BITTERS

"Well, they cured me of every distressing symptom in ten weeks and you had better follow my example.

PLANTATION BITTERS

If you want PURE, rich and electrical blood—blood that gives tone to the system, the "rose tint of health" to the cheek.—Try it

PLANTATION BITTERS

Thousands of families in Ohio and Mississippi valley, and on the border of the southern rivers and swamps, will not be without out.

PLANTATION BITTERS

Which is the cheapest? A dollar bottle of Plantation Bitters, or a physician at two dollars a visit?

PLANTATION BITTERS

"The value of such an antidote cannot be expressed in words"

PLANTATION BITTERS

Will restore the vital energy, repair indigestion, and correct the sluggish circulation of the blood.

PLANTATION BITTERS

Is an unequalled invigorating cordial for the aged as well as for the young.

PLANTATION BITTERS

Is unsurpassed for weak and delicate persons, on their requiring a gentle stimulant.

PLANTATION BITTERS

"I began taking your Bitters the next day, and am perfectly happy to tell you that they have completely restored my health, strength and cheerfulness."

PLANTATION BITTERS

"I find nothing so good for headache and languor to which my daughters are at times subject! It gives them a splendid appetite, and they eat like pigs."

PLANTATION BITTERS

"By advice of my physician, soon after my baby was born I commenced taking them, and they have done me so much good."

RELIGIOUS INTELLIGENCE.

PERSONAL, LOCAL AND STATE NEWS.

[From the Advocate.]

A new Catholic church will soon be erected at Baker City.

Rev. P. S. Hyland has resigned the pastorate of the Episcopal church at Olympia and will go to Port Townsend.

The camp-meeting at Silverton lasted ten days and quite a number were converted and added to the church.

The Corvallis Gazette learns from Rev. N. Doane, P. E., that fifteen persons have professed religion at the Belfountain camp-ground.

A camp-meeting commenced on Thursday last, on the Clear Creek Circuit, and will be continued over the Sabbath. Rev. C. C. Stratton, P. E., and Rev. W. T. Chapman, preacher in charge.

Rev. Wm. H. Hillery, who has been laboring with much zeal and success in behalf of the interests of the A. M. E. Zion Church, of this city, will return for a time to California, by the next steamer. His closing sermons, therefore, may be expected to-morrow morning and evening.

The first concert of the Kalama Sabbath school was held in the Methodist Church. It was well attended and all pronounced it a decided success. The children acquitted themselves in a manner that would do credit to an older town than Kalama. About $40 was raised by contribution for the benefit of the school. Mrs. E. S. Ingalls and others of the leaders deserve credit for their unwearied efforts in behalf of the Sabbath school.

Rev. Wm. Pollard, of the Wesleyan Methodist Church in Canada, has been appointed by the Conference, to fill the vacancy in the district of British Columbia, occasioned by the resignation of Rev. E. White. The Christian Guardian, in noticing the appointment, says of Mr. Pollard: "We have no doubt that his zeal and wisdom will give a new impulse to the work on the Pacific coast. Mr. Pollard is to be accompanied by the Rev. Joseph Hall, who is to take Mr. Derrick's place at Carlboo."

How We Used to be Physicked.
Who does not remember the time when spring purgation was considered indispensable to summer health? No matter for wry faces, the inevitable salts and senna, rhubarb, or calomel and jalap, must be administered. These "spring medicines," the youngsters were told, were to keep them safe and hearty during the summer. We all know now that this was a fallacy; that new vigor, not depletion, is what is required at the commencement of the summer solstice. As a preparation for the enervating effects of oppressive summer weather, a course of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is highly expedient. This famous vegetable preparation has three prominent properties: It renovates, purifies and regulates all the functions of the body. It is composed exclusively of pure vegetable productions, viz: the essential principle of Monongahela Rye, and the most efficacious tonic and alterative roots, barks and gums known to medical botanists. Hence, it is an absolutely safe medicine, and no tincture of the Pharmacopœia can compare with it either in purity or in the variety of its objects, and its comprehensive results. Happily for mankind, the theory that it was necessary to prostrate a patient in order to cure him is forever exploded, and the true philosophical doctrine, that vigor is the great antagonist of disease, has taken its place. Hostetter's Bitters is an invigorant, and hence it is the proper medicine for the feeble at this most trying season of the year.
Be sure that you obtain the genuine article, as there are innumerable vile imitations in the market. Look to the ornamental stamp, the engraved label, and the name blown into the glass. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is sold in bottles only.

Charmed by the Cobra.

People who have never been to Egypt doubt the stories which reach them relative to the fascination that is wrought upon the human race by the cobra di capello. To those who have doubts upon the subject, the appended extract from De Leon's "Askaros Kassis," one of the most brilliant novels representative of Eastern life recently published, will be convincing. Edith, the young lady mentioned, is one of a party of English people on their way to their host's house on the environs of Grand Cairo:

At the same moment a stifled shriek broke from the lips of Edith, who had been thrown to the ground and had just risen to her feet. She stood immovable, as though from terror, trembling in every limb, her lips parted, and her blue eyes—a strange mixture of fascination, horror in their staring orbs—fixed upon a point in the shrubbery just before her.

At the sound of her shriek, Askaros, who was a few steps in advance, landing the way, turned suddenly round; and his gaze, following hers, was instantly riveted on the same object, with somewhat the same fascination.

From the midst of a thick clump of shrubs, at the foot of a huge plain, gleamed forth what seemed two living coals! and beneath it—coiled in a huge bulk like the cordage of some mighty ship—fold above fold, sinuous, undulating, writhed the knotted convulsions of a slimy serpent. The eye of Askaros, bent upon the burning spots that made a gleam in the dusky shade of the shrubs, till he could distinguish the erect head of the monster—its forked tongue moving rapidly backward and forward in its poisonous jaws—while from the greenish eyes, full of evil fire, sparks seemed to scintillate.

Then, glancing from the grim terror to the maiden, the heart of the young Egyptian stood still, the hair bristled on his head, and the blood in his veins seemed to freeze; for that wondrous influence which the serpent exercises over man, bird or beast—commonly known as fascination, which science may deride, but experience has confirmed by testimony of many men in many lands, had wrought its spell over her gentle spirit. Her first impulse of terror and flight had not only been arrested, but changed into apparently two different sentiments; and repulsion and terror had been succeeded by what seemed attraction—even pleasure.

After sudden flight was checked, changed to an attitude of eager expectation, her body bent forward, her lips apart, her hand placed over her ear, a yearning interest manifested in each strange feature of her speaking face, while her large blue eyes, the pupils unnaturally dilated, strained into the copse; and she stood there, under the sombre shadow of the palm, the living embodiment of that exquisite creation of the chisel that has made the sculptor's fame—the listening Nydia of Pompeii.

The parted lips moved slightly, and her head raised itself with a languid motion.

Hush!" she murmured, as one speaking in a dream. "Do not break that heavenly music. It sounds like the songs of heavenly angels!"

Then, on the second, a hoarse, hissing whisper grated through the clenched teeth of the Egyptian, who stirred not hand or foot, but with a single glance warned back the astonished group, who were about pressing forward.

"Stir not! speak not—if you love her? It is the dolce-far-niente. They only strike when anger is—movement will be death!"

A chill struck to the heart of his listeners as they heard that dreaded name. They shuddered and obeyed.

Motionless as the rest, but with every nerve strained as if ready to spring between the girl and serpent—to interpose his own body as her shield, if necessary—and with his eyes fixed on the monster, the Egyptian watched its every movement, as the crest rose and fell, and the scales of the sinuous bulk writhed and twisted in its dark, brown coils. Large drops of sweat rolled from his contracted brow, his breast heaved like that of an athlete after a deadly strain, and his respiration on his white silk vest from the lips whose many white teeth tore in his agitation. Acutely strained to agony was stamped on every feature, but, with marvelous self-control he stood still as if hewn out of stone!

Moments, that seemed hours, passed. Twice the cobra raised his flattened head, poised the ominous cowl over his red eyes, trembled his stiffening coil, and seemed preparing for his arrowy spring. Then twice the Copt, bracing every muscle, seemed ready to throw himself between the monster and its prey.

But twice the serpent lowered his head and coiled itself; and twice a deep gasp from the Egyptian relieved breast of the man proved the peril past—one strain over.

The rest of the group—stupefied by the peril, and sure that the Egyptian knew best what the fearful situation required—implicitly obeyed the warning.

Suddenly, while all remained in this horrible suspense, there sounded from the other side of the wall the low wailing notes of the Egyptian reed flute, followed by a peculiar trill. As it crept caught the sound, his face brightened, and he breathed a deep sigh of relief. He recognized the call of the serpent charmer so well known in the East. The cobra seemed to hear it, too. Through his sinuous bulk there seemed to run a quivering thrill. His uplifted crest sank; his head coiled sullenly and reluctantly unwound itself, turning his head in the direction of the sound—he stretched his full length over the intervening sward. A second and shriller note—a flute, followed by a louder call, broke the spell—the dead stillness; and then the serpent slowly twisted round its gross body and with a gliding motion, dragged itself off in the opposite direction—its course indicated by the waving of the shrubbery as its slimy folds worked through it with a rustling sound.

When the cobra first turned his head and released the maiden from the spell of his glittering eye, a slight shudder shook her frame, and she leaned eagerly forward, as though to follow his movements. The next moment her eyes contracted, the lids closed wearily, her trembling limbs refused to support her, and she would have fallen heavily forward, had not Askaros rushed up and sustained her fainting form on his sinewy arm.

Prophetic Character of Dreams.

We are warranted by authentic history to believe that dreams have given information of future events. Hence weak people infer that they always were, and still may be, prophetical. But nothing is more absurd. Because in an ancient time there were prophets and holy men, shall I, therefore, conclude that I am a saint or a prophet? Because the Deity has been pleased to reveal himself in an extraordinary manner to some persons set apart by him for extraordinary purposes; shall I therefore imagine that He will reveal to me the trifling occurrences of my life a few days before they happen? He has, in great mercy, concealed from us the knowledge of what is to come, except so far as was necessary to us, and could be made out by human reason. For man acquainted with futurity would be both useless and miserable. For him all curiosity and enterprise would be at an end, and all hope extinguished; future evils would torment him before they come; and future good, by being anticipated, would lose every charm that surprise and novelty confer upon it. And he would sit down, motionless and stupid, in expectation of evil which he could not avoid, and of good which would give rise neither to activity nor desire. An oyster endowed with sight and hearing, consciousness and reason, would not be a more wretched creature. Even when God has foretold future events by his prophets, He has generally delivered the prophecy in terms that could not be fully understood till after it was accomplished, for otherwise it must have interfered with the principles of human action, and with the ordinary course of human affairs.

Is it not strange, if dreams are prophetical, that after the experience of so many ages, we should never have found out any rational way of expounding them? And if some are prophetical, but not all, is it not strange that every species of dream should be equally familiar to good men and to bad? For of each character there are some superstitious people who believe in dreams, and some more rational who do not. To say that dreams are of a divine origin implies (as Aristotle has well observed) many absurdities, and this among others, that it is not to the wisest and best men they are sent, but to all indiscriminately.

The rules by which the vulgar pretend to interpret dreams are too ridiculous to be mentioned. They are indeed such as may make almost any dream prophetical of any event. If a dream and a subsequent occurrence be the same, or similar, then they believe that the dream foretold it.

That there may occasionally be a coincidence of a dream with a future event, is nothing more than one has reason to expect from the revolution of chances. It would, indeed, be wonderful, considering the variety of our thoughts in sleep, and that they all bear some analogy to the affairs of life, if this did never happen. But there is nothing more extraordinary in it than that an idiot should sometimes speak to the purpose, or an irregular clock once or twice in the day point to the right time. The same coincidence of a reality with a previous imagination is observable when we are awake, as when a friend whom we did not expect, happens to come in view the very moment we were thinking or speaking of him; a thing so common, that both in Latin and English, it may be expressed by a proverb.—Dr. Beattie.

A "Little Affair" in Louisiana that Failed for Want of "Nerve."

On a certain occasion since the beginning of 1871, in the little town of Ouachita City, on the banks of the Ouachita river, about 25 miles above the city of Monroe, two gentlemen, Johnson and Jones, concluded to pay one game of seven-up for $5. They took their time and interspersed the game with several drinks. They finally finished the game. Johnson being the winner, raked in the money.

Jones studied about it a while. He made up his mind that it was not right for Johnson to take the money, as they were neighbors—not gamblers, any way—and they were only in fun. He said:

"You are not going to take that money, are you?"

"Yes, indeed I am," said Johnson.

"Well," said Jones, "you had as well take it out of my pocket."

"Now, Jones take that back."

"I shall not take it back, and if you are not satisfied, help yourself in any way that you choose."

"But, Jones, I insist that you take it back, I don't steal myself."

"I will not take it back; and now repeat that you had as well have stolen that money out of my pocket. If you wish a difficulty, you can have it in any way you like."

"Well, then we will shoot it out," said Johnson.

"Very well, sir," said Jones, "mention your time and place."

Without further ceremony, all the arrangements were made for the duel to take place that evening. Many of the neighbors were there, and at once concluded to have the fight come off. They knew Johnson, who had proposed the shooting, would back out unless encouraged. They knew, on the other hand, that Jones would stand up without flinching. The seconds loaded the pistols with blank cartridges and informed Johnson of the fact, but did not let Jones in the secret. They did this to make Johnson stand, which, of course, made him fearless, bold and daring. He went to the appointed place, and Jones was there, cool and calm. The moment for action arrived, and all parties took their positions—the distance being ten paces. The pistols were handed to Johnson and Jones, in death like silence—every one being serious as death. The count commenced—"one!"

"Stop!" said Johnson. "It is understood by all parties that there ain't no bullets in these pistols!"

Jones, hearing this, and knowing nothing of it before, rather staggered forward, reeling, looked into the muzzle of his pistol, and cried out, "I'll be d—d if there ain't bullets in mine!" and at the same time pulled down on Johnson.

This was too much for Johnson. He broke for the nearest house, which was about 200 yards, and they say he doubled up like a four-bladed knife, and has not been seen since, but sent word back that he might "shoot it out" with the wind, but he wanted none in his. Jones won the field against all odds.

A Rain of Frogs in Arizona.

The following is from the July number of the Overland Monthly:

The phenomenon familiarly known as the "rain of frogs" has been ridiculed and contradicted by certain scientists; nevertheless, there is abundant proof to show that it has occurred, and probably will again. In 1864, the writer, in company with some fifty other travelers had personal experience of the fact. We were in Arizona, not less than twenty miles from any stream, pond or water. The day was extremely sultry, and we had halted to let the animals graze and rest for an hour or two. Not a living thing besides ourselves and horses was in sight, and certainly no frogs were hopping over the rich, tufted grama-grass, which covered the ground for miles in every direction. Suddenly a dense, black cloud made its appearance, and it soon began to discharge a copious rain upon our unsheltered heads. The drops were very large, and the water quite warm. Nearly every person wore a broad-brimmed felt hat, which proved a great protection against the rain as well as against the sun. Our attention was soon arrested by the pelting of something which struck our hats like hail, but which proved to be frogs, and in less than two minutes the grass was fairly alive with those creatures. Several of the party took some from their hat-rims. Our unexpected visitors were all of one size, about a quarter of an inch long from nose to rump, very lively, and apparently in the best condition. Their fall had been broken by the springy, resilient nature of the grass. It is not probable that several hundred thousand, perhaps millions, of frogs had suddenly been hatched into life in the ground by the rain, or if they had, that in their infantile glee they jumped five feet eleven inches from the earth to the top of our heads merely to show how the game of leap-frog should be played. Nor had they any such caudal appendages as are generally attached to juvenile rana. They came from above, in company with the rain; and this fact was made clear by holding out the hand and seeing them fall upon it, as well as finding them on our hat-rims. The eggs from which these reptiles sprung, had undoubtedly been drawn up into the atmosphere by the action of a water-spout, and held in suspension with aqueous particles long enough to hatch them out and give them perfect form; then, by the force of mutual attraction, the separated particles of vapor got together in such masses as to form heavy sheets of water, which, in turn, became amenable to the law of attraction of gravitation, returning to the earth from whence it had been drawn. In the fall new divisions were created, called "drops," among which the frogs descended, having been obedient to similar forces moving with the aqueous particles. This instance is cited to show that other things besides vapor are translated from earth to atmosphere by certain well-known and accredited developments of natural laws.
